NO DECISION REACHED SO FAR

After the reading of the journal Mr. Allison suggested that there was no quorum present and a roll call disclosed the fact that the suggestion was well taken—thirty-nine Senators replying to their names. It was but a few minutes, however, before a quorum appeared, and the Senate proceeded to the transaction of business.

The presiding officer laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Interior (in response to a Senate resolution) giving the names and rank of officers of the army, navy and marine corps now drawing pensions. Referred. Mr. McConnell introduced bills for the erection of public buildings at Lewiston and Boise City, Idaho. Referred.

was then (at 12:15) taken up, and Mr. Stewart asked unanimous consent that a vote should be taken on the bill and amendments at 4 tion of the army appropriation bill. On a MR. GORMAN SURPRISED.

Mr. Gorman expressed his surprise at the proposition. The amendment offered to the bill by the Senator from Nevada (Mr. Stewart) had been described by the Senator from Ohio (Mr. Sherman) as one of the most revolutionary measures introduced in Congress and that Senator had said that if the amendment was agreed to the whole financial structure of the country would probably be overturned. If the Senator from Ohio was correct in that matter Senators country be between the senator from Ohio was correct in that matter enators ought to have time to deliberate—time b ascertain what was necessary to be done.

MR. STEWART QUOTED AGAINST MR. SHERMAN. On the other hand, the Senator from Nevada (Mr. Stewart) had stated in the most emphatic from Ohio to the committee on finance were more destructive to the interests of the people presented.

more destructive to the interests of the people than any proposition ever presented. If either of those Senators were right (he trusted they were both wrong) the Senate ought to have time to weigh and consider the matter. There ought to be a disposition on both sides of the chamber to come together and consider the matter calmly and carefully, without regard to party. The haste displayed in the matter by the Senator from Nevada seemed to him most extraordinary. There had been not more tuan eight or ten hours' discussion of the bill, nearly all of it on the republican side, although the Senate had been for weeks meeting at 10 o'clock, thus precluding all possibility of attending to the work of committees. There was no desire on the democratic side to protract the consideration of the bill unduly.

Mr. Sherman, referring to an allusion made by Mr. Gorman, said that the practical control the finance committee. The proposition for the free coinage of silver was so much more important than any proposition that could be passed that the committee had felt disposed to surrender the control of the bill to the superior authority on the other side (supposed to be in favor of that proposition) together with the few Senators on his side, and to let them exercise their authority and the House exercise its authority.

The Commissioners are of opinion that the following route is preferable to that named in the bill, so far as public interest is concerned, and recommend substitution therefor, viz: Beginning at 14th and U streets northwest, thence south on 14th street to New York avenue, thence along U street to Florida avenue, thence along Florida avenue to New Jersey avenue and thence along where the responsibility rested, at least as the matter now stood. He expected to stand in opposition to the free coinage proposition, because he thought it practical financial revolution of the whole system and he did not think himself responsible for the bill, as it was practically taken out of the hands of the committee.

Mr. Gorman thought that the Senator from Ohio did himself great injustice; that distinguished Senator stood before the country as no other Senator did, on account of his great familiarity with the financial affairs of the democratic side of the chamber who did not, at the beginning of the session, look to that Senator to lead in that matter for the present relief to the country. That Senator and his colleagues knew that Senators on the democratic side were ready to join in the consideration of a financial measure that would be moderate and conservative, and that would give immediate relief to business affairs. The report also recommends that the company shall pay 4 per cent of the gross earnings and that where double tracks are laid there shall he a distance of four feet eight inches between the inner rails; also that any damage to its tracks or conduits is to be repaired by the road and that the speed of cars is not to exceed eight miles per hour.

With the report the Commissioners transmitted abig bundle of papers and petitions in relation to the bill.

The situation looks more favorable for a peaceful settlement. Runners from the hostile camps and prominent chiefs from the Ogalialas, who, with their people, have been forced to remain at that place, have been into the agency and have held a conference with Gen.
